

John Browning is a shareholder with the Dallas law firm of Passman Jones, where he handles a wide variety of civil litigation in state and federal courts. When he is not trying cases or handling appeals, John teaches as an adjunct law professor at 3 law schools, writes articles for publications ranging from the Texas Bar Journal to academic law reviews, and is the author of 4 law books (the most recent of which, "Legal Ethics and Social Media: A Practitioner's Handbook", was published this June by the ABA). He lives with his very understanding wife Lisa and two adorable rescue dogs, Teddi and Raven
